3. Justification and Learning Objectives for the Course. (Indicate whether required or elective, and whether it meets University Writing, and/or Language requirements) [Use as much space as necessary]

This is a required course for Sociology majors. In this course, students will develop the collaborative, research, and writing skills needed to conduct and present an original, ethical sociological experiment. Through this course, students will be able to:

1. Articulate the basic tenets of the quantitative methods used in sociology.
2. Read, understand, and critically evaluate empirical research reports published in sociological journals on the basis of its validity and conformity to ASA’s ethical principles.
3. Develop testable hypotheses derived from a theory.
4. Identify and apply various research designs in new situations.
5. Create and critique questionnaires/survey instruments.
6. Identify which statistical analyses are appropriate for various research designs.
7. Use statistical software (SPSS) to analyze data.
8. Interpret and draw conclusions from descriptive and inferential statistical analyses.
9. Apply quantitative methods to answer sociological questions.
10. Develop necessary skills for an efficient review of the sociological literature using computerized data bases.
11. Prepare written reports according to the stylistic conventions of the American Sociological Association.
